campaign progressed he also showed himself a pragmatic and tough politician. He said the right things and made no big promises.

Though a native of Quebec, he didn't give an inch to those Quebecers who want a special deal for that dominantly French-speaking province, or even to split off from Canada. There is one Canada, Trudeau said, and that's the way it's going to be. At the last minute, when Quebec separatists rioted in Montreal and hurled a bottle past the prime minister, he didn't flinch.

In contrast, the Conservatives, though also under new leadership, never caught popular fancy. Robert Stanfield, the Nova Scotian who replaced the late Pierre Trudeau last year, said as the returns rolled in that he had known 24 hours earlier that his party was beaten.

Stanfield is 54, only six years older than Trudeau, but to most Canadians, it appeared, his and the Tories' ideas were old-hat or at least not good enough.

The election was for 264 seats, with each citizen voting only for a legislator in his own district. Thus Trudeau's name was on the ballot only in a Montreal district, but voters nationwide knew whom they were supporting when they voted Liberal.

Tabulations today showed the Liberals were sure of 153 seats. The Conservatives had 70 and were leading in two contests. The New Democratic party took 23, the Creditistes of Quebec 15, and an Independent 1.

The Social Credit party was eliminated from Parliament. It had four members after the 1965 election.

The Conservatives showed strength in the Atlantic provinces, winning 25 seats to the Liberals' 7. That trend was easily overcome in more populous provinces.

Sprick Jumps on the Byrd Bandwagon

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—State Sen. Dan T. Sprick of Little Rock jumped on the Clyde E. Byrd for governor bandwagon Tuesday, and said he felt that Byrd was one of the top two contenders for the Democratic nomination at this time.

"In my opinion, Clyde Byrd is the most qualified candidate to offer himself to the people of Arkansas," Sprick said.

Sprick said he felt that if Byrd could win the Democratic nomination he could defeat the Republican candidate in the November general election.

Sprick is the second state senator to voice his support for Byrd, a former senator, Sen. Guy "Mutt" Jones of Conway endorsed Byrd Sunday.

made a 10-mile tour of poor and wealthy sections of the Negro areas hit by disorders and to the surprise of even the drivers was warmly welcomed wherever it went.

This prompted young and 28-year-old wagon master Willie Bolden to decide that mule train members could do more out of jail than in, and should try to drum up support among Washington area residents.

"We will use the mule train to go around the D.C. community and try to get the community involved," Young said.

As the mule train creaked along the Potomac River bridge from Virginia, it passed within sight of a strangely empty Resurrection City.

Some 400 workmen arrived at the muddy, rutted Lincoln Memorial campground at 8 a.m. and in less than six hours, demolished what had taken the campaign more than six trouble-plagued weeks to build.

Less than 24 hours after it was vacated by a police sweep, not one of the plywood huts was left standing. Bulldozers pushed piles of dirt left over from sewer and electric line ditches into the muddy ruts, and both plywood and belongings were put in storage for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and its campaigners to claim.

A few U.S. Park Police patrolled the perimeter of the 15-acre site to keep out the curious. Some stood by crude, hand-lettered signs reading, "Occupied by U.S. Government."

A spokesman said reseeded of the turf would be done in August, a better growing season.

Whitbeck Says Statement Misconstrued

STUTTGART, Ark. (AP) — Democratic gubernatorial candidate Frank Whitbeck said here Tuesday night that a recent statement he had made had been misconstrued.

Whitbeck said the statement, urging gubernatorial candidates to make themselves available to press and to state their position on various issues, had been misinterpreted as being criticism of Mrs. Virginia Johnson.

Whitbeck said he would not include a mixed drink bill in his platform, but did say he believed the issue should be decided by the voters.

He said he would sign a local option mixed drink bill that could be policed and included sufficient safeguards if it had been passed by the legislature.

Whitbeck also said he would not move to execute the 11 men on death row at Tucker Prison Farm if elected as was implied in an article in Sunday's edition of the Pine Bluff Commercial.

Whitbeck said he favored commuting the prisoners' sentences to life imprisonment.

Sees Great Things From Pilot Project

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Dr. Palmer C. Pilcher, vice president for academic affairs at the University of Arkansas, said Tuesday that a pilot project in adult education at the university could have "nation-wide implications."

School officials announced Tuesday that a $200,000 federal grant for the project had been approved.

Pilcher said the money would be used to design and demonstrate a learning center-industrial site program, which will include an evaluation of the effectiveness of such an approach in a rural state.

Pilcher said the project would study the educational and training needs of the adult population in the state. He also said the project, ultimately, would establish a research center in the Arkansas Ozarks region to study the problems of the under employed and unemployed in the areas.

Chicago Man Killed in Accident

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — Billy Ray Phillips, 33, of Chicago, Ill., was killed and two other persons seriously injured Tuesday night in a two-car crash on a Jonesboro city street.

Officers said Phillips' vehicle was struck broadside by a car driven by James Morgan, 32, of Jonesboro.

Authorities said Morgan was injured seriously and a passenger in Phillips' car, Eugene Heflin, 36, of Jonesboro, critically injured. Both were hospitalized at Jonesboro.

Bennett Would Be Happy to Debate WR

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP) — Bruce Bennett of El Dorado, a Democratic candidate for governor, said today that he would be happy to debate Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller "at any place and any time."

Rockefeller told the North Little Rock Rotary Club Tuesday that he hoped to debate the state's financial situation with one of the Democratic gubernatorial candidates.

B. G. Robertson, vice president and general manager of KTHV-TV, Little Rock, said he would provide all the "free, prime time it takes to bring out all the information the candidates want to bring out in the debate."

"We will be very happy to offer the time," Robertson said. Bennett, in a telegram to Rockefeller was the first to accept the invitation and he said the "sooner the better."

"Would you please advise my Little Rock office by telegram of your acceptance?" Bennett said. "Upon receipt of same, we can make arrangements so that the news media can be present and maximum coverage gained."

Bennett said that the "fiscal affairs of the state of Arkansas have been plunged into chaos" during Rockefeller's administration.

In his speech, Rockefeller noted that Mrs. Virginia Johnson, a Democratic gubernatorial candidate, had criticized him for hiring non-Arkansians for key jobs in the state administration.

Using statistics about the state's population, Rockefeller said, "More Arkansians live outside Arkansas than live in."

Rockefeller said he hoped there would come a time when the Democratic candidates would stop talking about him and start discussing each other.

The governor said, without naming anyone, that one of the Democrats was talking about fiscal responsibility and that he hoped to debate that subject with him soon.

"When has the administration been sufficiently honest... to admit that a problem does exist and that they have defined it... 14 months ahead of the crisis?" he asked.

The first Christmas card was created in England in 1843.

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Johnson has nominated William F. Woods for the postmastership at Hazen and R.E. Johnson for a similar position at Arkansas University. It was announced Tuesday.

Civilians Killed in Saigon Raids

SAIGON (AP) — Barefoot and silent, Warrant Officer Nguyen Van Hang of the North Vietnamese Army stood in the rubble of a Saigon home.

It had been destroyed by 122mm rockets just after midnight June 21. Six civilians had been killed in their sleep. A score were wounded.

Nguyen Van Hang was in charge of gunners that fired the rockets. He commanded Battery 11 in the 208th North Vietnamese Artillery regiment whose mission has been artillery attacks on the capital.

The 29-year-old officer was captured three days ago by South Vietnamese paratroopers in an ambush northwest of Saigon.

As he stared at the smoke-stained remnants of brick walls, bits and pieces of broken furniture and torn clothing in the rubble, a crowd gathered.

An old man, dressed only in shorts, was the first to lunge forward. Armed with a shovel he had used to dig in the ruins of his house, the old man tried to hit the North Vietnamese. A paratrooper held back his raised arm. The old man tried to kick with his bare foot. "We will kill you!" he shouted.

Warrant Officer Hang side-stepped him, but he looked scared.

Others surged forward. The paratroopers formed a line between their captive and the angry crowd.

"Why don't you execute him right here in the ruins?" demanded a young student.

"Give him to me, I will kill him," another man with a large, dirty bandage on his bare back cried out. "He wounded me in the rocket attack and now I don't care if I have to go to jail if I can just kill him!"

"Let's show him that we are no savages," a paratrooper sergeant said, trying to calm the crowd. Then he turned to the prisoner: "We all know how badly your people treat the American pilots in a case like this."

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A viewer tuning in Tuesday night's "Showtime" on CBS a few minutes late may have had moments of confusion. There was singer Eddy Arnold, making like a variety show host in his best country style.

Now Eddy Arnold has been—and will be—one of the regular hosts on NBC's Wednesday night "Music Hall." Thus it appears that although many are called, only a few qualify in some mysterious way for hosting assignments.

Beyond the fact that Arnold was singing and talking a bit and both are variety shows, there is really little similarity between and two summer programs. Where "Music Hall" is a slick little sister of its winter show, it is still aimed generally at the younger TV audiences.

"Showtime," taped in London, is pretty much a straight vaudeville show, the kind an older generation grew up with.

The work of the assorted English music hall comedians seen on the show suggests that American audiences have developed a more sophisticated taste in humor than our British cousins. The English audience, judging from the laughter on the sound track breaks up when a baggy-pants comic trips over a chair or relates a stale joke.

The second part of "The Cities" on CBS Tuesday night was an inspection of the problems involved in rehabilitating the homes and lives of the millions who are prisoners in the city slums.

The program concentrated on two places. First there was the crumbling Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn where 95 per cent of the population is nonwhite, where illegitimate births and narcotic addiction are commonplace and where the crime rate is high.

CBS showed some of the experiments now in progress to see if the area can be salvaged. Bedford-Stuyvesant is in far too deep trouble even to think now about integration when the needs are financial credit, jobs and job training and better education for its inhabitants.

The other place shown was the Crenshaw section of Los Angeles consisting of $30,000 to $200,000 homes of professional and other prosperous families. Here, seven miles from the Watts section of Los Angeles, whites, Negroes and Orientals have made a good start on building an integrated community.

So far CBS has said little not already known. It has suggested that help can come in the form of massive infusions of money from government and outside sources, by cooperation by business and by a change of attitude by the white population.

The concluding program will be broadcast tonight.

Bob Thomas at the Movies

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Greg Morris was fortunate to come along in what he terms the age of realization. It wasn't as easy for Sidney Poitier, James Edwards, Harry Belafonte and other Negro actors who preceded him.

Until two or three years ago, Negroes found little work in films and television except as: 1. a singer or dancer; or 2. as the victim of racial prejudice in problem dramas.

That has been changed with the emergence of Poitier as a box-office star of films in which his race is incidental and with the casting of Negroes as costars in television series. In the CBS series, "Mission Impossible," Greg Morris plays operative Barney Collier with little if any reference to race.

"I don't like to be called a 'Negro actor,'" he remarked. "I am proud of being a man, an actor, and a Negro, but when I am referred to as a 'Negro actor,' that immediately places the connotation that I can only play Negro parts."

"But Barney Collier isn't a 'Negro part.' The next actor who was up for consideration for the role happened to be a blue-eyed Scandinavian."

"That's healthy. I think films and television have entered the age of realization, when producers realize that Negroes can play doctors, lawyers, dentists — yes, and villains, too. I've done them all."

"Of the 50-55 roles I've played in television and movies, most of them didn't concern the color of my skin. The most notable exception was a 'Ben Casey,' in which I played a black nationalist who hated both Vince Edwards for being white and Sammy Davis for playing along with the whites. That's all right, too; such viewpoints should be aired so that people can try to understand them."

Greg Morris had an unsettled childhood, being the son of a broken family. He was born in Cleveland and graduated from high school there. After two years in the Army, mostly in West Germany, he went to Ohio State and the University of Iowa, hoping to develop his basketball skill to become a player for the Boston Celtics.

A theater arts course intervened. Married and with one child—he now has three—Morris left college in his third year to support his family. He landed in Seattle and worked as a waiter in the Hotel Olympia while trying to develop his acting in the daytime. He played the Potitler role in a little-theater version of "A Raisin in the Sun," then repeated the role in Long Beach, Calif., where a Hollywood agent saw him.

A local theater presentation of "Purdie Victorious" was the turning point for Morris. It was seen by Carl Reiner, who cast him for the memorable "Dick Van Dyke Show" in which Dick feared his baby had been switched with another in the hospital; it turned out the other parents were a Negro couple. The Director of the show was John Rich, who cast Morris in his first movie, "The New Interns."

Old Rule May Be Revoked

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Revenue Department is considering revoking a 1929 regulation that had given domestic insurance companies a tax break for 40 years.

The department said, however, that the state Legislative Council would investigate the matter first to see if there is any further need for it.

The regulation authorized Arkansas firms to establish a four per cent reserve as a deduction in computing their net taxable income.

Arkansas Is War Victim

WASHINGTON (AP) — Navy Gunner's Mate 2C Billy S. Armstrong, son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. B. Armstrong of West Helena, Ark., has been killed in action in Vietnam, the Defense Department said Monday.

So far CBS has said little not already known. It has suggested that help can come in the form of massive infusions of money from government and outside sources, by cooperation by business and by a change of attitude by the white population.

The concluding program will be broadcast tonight.

This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help Us!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush off.

Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED FOR IT, care of Helen Help Us! this newspaper.

AND THE "BEAT" GOES ON.

Dear Helen: Concerning Mrs. C. F. whose love for "the right man" caused her to reappraise what she termed a mismatched marriage! You said you worried over the answer for a month, but I believe you gave the wrong one... I am concerned, even though I, though on the whole I admire your common sense, and have many of your columns in my files.

Mrs. C. F. wrote, "I know there is only one answer: Give up Tom, surround myself with wife and motherhood and forget the warmth and wonder of a silly thing called love." She gave her own solution, Helen, and bear in mind she called love "silly." Doesn't that mean she still can't trust her decisions? She has built her husband into an admired and successful business man. She has a good place in the community, in spite of her husband's shaky past. She took him "for better or for worse... until death do us part." She should be urged to keep her part of the bargain.

Instead you suggested an honest talk, which might show that both mates "want out of a bad bargain." You more or less encouraged her to go back on her promise. Though she feels her youthful marriage was a mistake, "two wrongs do not make a right."

Please, do all you can to strengthen the bonds of matrimony, via your column. The term wedding is appropriate. Marriage ought to lock out third parties, as well as lock in those who speak their vows to each other. My church does not always condemn divorce, but we know that "marriage triangles usually turn into wrecked tangles." — REV. R.P.L.

Dear Helen: I salute you for your answer to Mrs. C. F. Several years ago I was in a marriage similar to hers. Because my training and beliefs were opposed to divorce, I struggled far too long trying to reconcile myself to a loveless marriage.

Finally in desperation I filed for divorce. The change for my young son and myself was unbelievable. His school work improved, and I soon had a good job. The divorce benefitted my husband as he was able to go back to his wild crowd without my — as he called it — constant disapproval.

Five years later I met my present husband, who is all the world to us. I shudder to think what life would have been had I not taken the giant step. To C.F. I say: If there is no reasonable prospect for building a tolerable marriage, then break the bonds and marry your Tom. Life is too short, etc. — — HAPPILY REMARRIED

Dear Helen: I had a similar experience to that of Mrs. C. F. — I chose to stay. Today my husband is successful. We have a beautiful home, fine children, new cars. Twenty years ago he could barely make a living. I have encouraged and helped him because I felt sorry for him and wanted to pull him away from bad influences.

Outwardly we're a perfect couple. Inwardly, I'm dead. Two years after we were married, I met the man I should have married. All that ever came of it was an accidental kiss. Laugh if you will, but that kiss showed us what love was like. He begged me to divorce my husband and marry him. Like a goody-goody, I refused.

It was the greatest mistake of my life. I've lived through hell, made worse by always having to put on a false face to the public. We have both been miserable. My husband confessed recently that he never did love ME either, but only stayed out of duty. If we had only been honest with each other years ago, think what life might have brought for both of us. — RUINED BY PITY AND DUTY

Dear Helen: C.F. should follow her conscience, not her feelings! Marriage vows are sacred. — FORMER SCHOOL TEACHER

Dear Helen: Mrs. C.F.'s story is uncannily close to mine.

I fell in love with my husband's friend. For three years we were thrown together. Our love was unplanned, and we fought against it. My husband found a little note that Doug had written, simply saying our love was hopeless. He kept it three months before he asked me about it. I was so relieved that I told him everything, which wasn't much — I'd remained true.

We then discussed the situation with our minister, and I finally went to a lawyer. No, it wasn't easy, but it was the best thing for all of us when the divorce was arranged.

Doug and I have been married almost a year. We're expecting our baby in five months. My children (three by my first marriage) love him and call him Daddy. Their real Daddy doesn't visit them much—he has a new life of his own. I never knew there could be so much happiness in the world. And somehow the guilt disappears once things are settled — for the other mate is relieved, too. I know divorce isn't right in every case, but I can only say to Mrs. C.F. — be awfully sure before you choose for a marriage without love! Your husband won't appreciate it either.

Dear Helen: Thank you for not being close-minded and rigidly moral about Mrs. C.F.'s human problem. Your answer was beautiful, and showed a compassionate insight. I believe that if a woman follows through with her true love, she will be more moral than if she stayed with a loveless marriage. — A READER

Dear Readers: Thank you for your kind words. Surprisingly, two-thirds of the many who commented on Mrs. C. F.'s letter, agreed with my answer. I'm amazed, for I thought I'd be drawn a n d quartered for my "sacrilege." — H.

Robinson Big Gun in Oriole Win

By MIKE RECHT

Associated Press Sports Writer Frank Robinson, only a pain in the neck earlier this season, and Wally Bunker, nothing but a sore arm this spring, look healthy enough now to patch up the aching Baltimore Orioles.

Robby, raising his average to .270, cracked a single, double and homer, driving in three runs and scoring two behind Bunker's five-hitter as the Orioles out up Boston 6-0 Tuesday night.

The performances were even more pleasing to the Orioles because the slugging Robinson obviously is back in shape after an earlier bout with the mumps, and Bunker appears over the arm trouble that forced his brief return to the minor leagues.

The victory also soothed the wounded Orioles with only their third triumph in 11 games and lifted them back into a tie for third place with Minnesota.

Cleveland held on to second place with a 6-1 victory over Washington, but one not gained ground on runaway Detroit as the Tigers came from behind for a 8-5 decision over the New York Yankees.

California downed Oakland 7-6 and Minnesota and the Chicago White Sox were rained out in other games.

In the National League, Pittsburgh tripped St. Louis 3-2, Atlanta beat Philadelphia 6-1, Houston defeated the Chicago Cubs 4-2, the New York Mets blanked Cincinnati 4-0, and San Francisco crushed Los Angeles 9-0.

Robinson blasted his third homer of the season off loser Ray Culp, 4-3, in the third inning after Bunker walked. His single drove in another run in the fifth and he doubled and scored in the seventh as the Orioles remained 8½ games behind Detroit.

Bunker, who helped pitch the Orioles to their 1966 pennant and won a game in that World Series, was knocked out last Wednesday in his first start since being recalled from Rochester of the International League.

Against the Red Sox he struck out seven, walked one and only one runner got past first base against him — Elston Howard doubled and reached third on an infield out.

Sonny Siebert of Cleveland did even better for six innings against the sickly Senators, who lost for the 11th time in 12 games. Siebert, who has one, two- and three-hitters this year, did not allow a hit until Ron Hansen doubled with two out in the seventh.

Del Unser followed with a run-scoring single and Siebert lasted the inning before giving way to Stan Williams in the intense heat in Washington. However, by the sixth, the Indians had built a 4-0 lead and Siebert had his seventh victory against five losses.

Detroit kept its lead over the Indians at 7½ games by erupting for six runs in the seventh inning to overcome a 5-1 Yankee lead in a game delayed three times and 99 minutes by rain.

Dick Tracewski belted a run-scoring double, Mickey Stanley singled in two runs and Willie Horton crashed a two-run triple and scored on Jim Northrup's fly. Northrup's triple added a run in the ninth.

California took a 7-3 lead with a run in the sixth inning when Oakland center fielder Rick Monday dropped a fly ball for a three-base error and Bubba Morton singled.

But the Angels had to call starter Jim McGlothlin out of the bullpen with the bases loaded, and none out in the eighth and two runs home, McGlothlin got out of the inning with a double play and a ground out.

Grand Slams in His First Major Game

By DICK COUCH

Associated Press Sports Writer For 70 long summers Frosty Bill Dugleby had a secluded corner of baseball's cluttered hall of records all to himself.

Then, a young Giant born two years after Frosty Bill's passing, crashed the oldtimer's heretofore private domain with one swing of the bat.

Bobby Bonds, a 22-year-old outfielder called up by San Francisco Monday from the Pacific Coast League, became the first modern-era player to hit a bases-loaded home in his first major league game when he connected during the Giants' 9-0 romp over Los Angeles Tuesday night.

The sixth inning grand slam — Bonds' first hit in the majors — matched a feat achieved just once before . . . by Dugleby, a right-handed pitcher, in his 1898 debut with the Philadelphia Nationals.

While Bonds' blast altered the record book and southpaw Ray Sadecki shackled the Dodgers on two hits, Pittsburgh's Maury Wills ran his hitting streak to 23 games—high in the majors this season—in a 3-2 victory over St. Louis, the NL leaders.

The New York Mets blanked Cincinnati 4-0, Atlanta whipped Philadelphia 6-1 and Houston beat the Chicago Cubs 4-2 in other NL games.

Detroit topped the New York Yankees 8-5, Cleveland downed Washington 6-1, California nipped Oakland 7-6 and Baltimore pounded Boston 6-0 in American League games. The Chicago White Sox and Minnesota were rained out.

Grand slam homers have become second nature to Bonds, a 6-foot-1 Californian who was leading the PCL with a .387 batting average when the Giants promoted him from their Phoenix farm club. Despite his claim that "I don't consider myself a home run hitter," he had swatted eight PCL homers . . . including three grand slams in five bases-loaded situations.

Bonds grounded out and was hit by a pitch in his first two at-bats. In the sixth, a pair of bases-loaded walks gave the Giants a 3-0 lead before Bonds sent a John Purdin pitch over the left field fence.

Sadecki struck out 10 and limped Los Angeles to a bloop third-inning double by pitcher Claude Osteen until Willie Davis beat out an infield roller in the ninth.

Wills bettered an earlier 22-game hitting streak put together by Cincinnati's Pete Rose with a run-scoring single in the fifth inning, then tripled and scored the deciding run in the eighth on Gene Alley's single.

Bob Voale blanked the Cardinals until the eighth, when they chased him during a two-run rally. Reliever Luke Walker then struck out Tim McCarver and got Ed Spiezio to rap into an inning ending double play, stranding the tying run on third.

Tom Seaver checked Cincinnati on five hits and Cleon Jones laced two singles and a homer as the Mets climbed within one victory of the 500 mark for the fourth time this year.

Braves' rookie Ron Reed fired a four-hitter against Philadelphia for his eighth victory in 11 decisions. Two run-scoring singles by catcher Joe Torre gave Reed all the support he needed.

Hector Torres' sixth-inning triple touched off a three-run burst that carried the Astros past the Cubs behind Mike Cuellar's five-hitter. The loss was Chicago's third in a row and 10th in the last 11 games.

Turbine to Make Race in Colorado

CASTLE ROCK, Colo. (AP) — A controversial turbine-powered racer, driven by Joe Leonard, will make its U.S. road race debut in the $25,000 premier Rocky Mountain 150-mile at Continental Divide Raceways here July 7.

The Parnelli Jones Firestone STP Special was entered in the U.S. Auto Club-sanctioned race Tuesday, bringing the field to 21 for the 57-lap race over the 10-turn, 2.66 mile course.

Leonard, of San Jose, Calif., drove the same turbine in the Indianapolis 500 last month after qualifying the machine at 171,599 miles an hour to win the pole position. He was in the lead with nine laps to go when the car stalled on the 191st lap.

Howard and Robinson Make Team

By BEN OLAN

Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Slugging outfielder Frank Howard of the Washington Senators, the American League's home run and runs batted in leader, was named to the circuit's All-Star team for the first time and third baseman Brooks Robinson made it for the ninth consecutive year, it was announced today.

Others chosen to start against the National League in the July 9 All-Star baseball game in Houston were outfielder Carl Yastrzemski of Boston, catcher Bill Freehan and outfielder Willie Horton of Detroit, first baseman Harmon Killebrew and second baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota and shortstop Jim Fregosi of California.

Robinson, Freehan, Killebrew, Carew and Yastrzemski all started last year when the AL dropped a 2-1 decision, extending the circuit's losing streak in the mid-season classic to five games. The National League leads in the series, 20 to 17 with one tie.

Outfielders Tony Oliva of Minnesota and Tony Conigliaro of Boston and shortstop Rico Petrocelli of the Red Sox were the other AL starters in 1967.

Freehan led the balloting by league players this year, accumulating 248 votes. The Tigers' backstop is batting .260.

Yastrzemski, hitting .321, was next with 246 votes followed by Howard with 238, Horton 193 and Carew, 184.

The closest competition for a starting position was at first base where Killebrew collected 116 votes and Boog Powell of Baltimore drew 106. Killebrew has 12 homers and 32 runs batted in, but is way down the batting list with a .216 average. Powell has a .255 batting mark with 11 homers and 44 RBI.

Howard had a .298 average with 24 homers and 53 RBI through Monday's games. He is in his fourth season with the Senators after five years in the Los Angeles Dodgers. He was never chosen to the NL All-Star squad.

The Orioles' Brooks Robinson is having one of his poorest seasons. He has a .234 batting mark with six homers and 23 runs batted in.

American Girls Don't Seek Money

By WALTON HEATH, England

(AP) — American girls who play golf well enough to compete at the highest possible amateur level may disagree on what club to use or how to line up a putt, but they seem in concert on one subject:

They wouldn't do it for money.

"Wouldn't think of it," says Mrs. David Wells, 31, of Mount Vernon, Wash.

"I wouldn't be interested," says 19-year-old Shelley Hamlin of Fresno, Calif.

They express the combined sentiment of the seven-girl American contingent which set out today in quest of the British Amateur championship. All seven collaborated to beat the British women in the Curtis Cup 10 days ago.

What they were saying is that they would never consider turning professional.

And perhaps Phyllis Preuss, 29, of Pompano Beach, Fla., gave an additional hint about all of them when she joked: "I'm getting a little up there in years but I'm still looking for the right man."

The seven Americans are regarded as the girls to beat in this 75-year-old championship, which was to have started over Walton Heath's exacting 6,242-yard par-7 course.

Rain washed out the first 18 holes of qualifying play so all 96 competitors teed off today over 18 holes to fill 64 slots by nightfall.

Richmond 11, Buffalo 10, Jacksonville 7, Toledo 4, Pacific Coast League 3, Oklahoma City 7, Seattle 3, Denver 4, San Diego 2, Hawaii 3, Vancouver 2, Spokane 9, Phoenix 7.

Tuesday's Stars

PITCHING — Ray Sadecki, Giants, fired a two-hitter and struck out 10 in a 9-0 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

BATTING — Bobby Bonds, Giants, hit a grand slam homer for his first major league hit, becoming the first player in modern baseball history to connect with the bases full in his big league debut.

Wimbledon Strained by Bad Weather

By GEOFFREY MILLER

Associated Press Sports Writer WIMBLEDON, England (AP)

— Bad weather is casting a cloud over the first Open Wimbledon tennis championship and threatening to put added strain on the veteran pros.

After two days hit heavily by rain, 14 of the 64 scheduled matches in the first round of the men's singles still hadn't been started.

Tournament referee Mike Gibson, said: "It's the older pros like Pancho Gonzales and Lew Hoad I feel sorry for."

"Normally we space out the singles matches so that players get a day's rest between rounds. But because the weather has interfered so much with the program, we shall not be able to avoid asking them to play on consecutive days."

Gonzales, 40, from Los Angeles, is competing in the All-England tournament for the first time since he turned pro 19 years ago. He won his first round match Tuesday, defeating Ramanathan Krishnan of India 6-2, 6-4, 6-3.

Hoad, 33-year-old Australian who turned pro after winning Wimbledon in 1957, defeated another Indian, Jaidip Mukerjee, in three straight sets Monday.

Herb Fitzgibbon, 26, from Garden City, N.Y., claimed Monday's honors by knocking out Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia 3-6, 7-5, 6-3, 6-2. That was the tournament's first upset of a pro by an amateur.

Pilic, a semi-finalist at last year's Wimbledon, was the No. 16 seed.

The two top seeds in the women's singles—both professionals — got off the mark with victories. Defending champion Mrs. Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., downed U.S. Wightman Cupper Peaches Barkowicz of Hamtramck, Mich., 7-5, 6-4. Mrs. Ann Jones of Britain, last year's defeated finalist, overcame Kathy Harter of Seal Beach, Calif., 6-0, 4-6, 6-4.

Finishers in Yacht Race to Arrive Thurs.

By NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The first finishers in the 3,000-mile single-handed yacht race from Plymouth, England, are expected to arrive at the finish line off Newport Thursday night at the earliest.

William Thomas of the local Ida Lewis Yacht Club, chairman of the committed handling arrangements for the finish, said Tuesday this estimate was based on the rate the yachts have been traveling since they left Plymouth June 1.

Thirty-five yachts entered the race. Thomas said 27 still were in the competition at last report. The last reported sighting of many of the yachts was Sunday, when a Royal Canadian Air Force plane said the apparent front-runners were Thomas Lip-ton of England in the lead and Voortraekker of South Africa 60 miles astern of him in second place.

Leo Robins Recalls Boxing

By CHARLES A. RICHARDS

Boxing once was a big sport in Arkansas. The larger cities had weekly matches, and in the smaller towns, two blindfolded field hands would go into a hastily stepped off ring to battle it out for money tossed inside it.

But beginning in the mid-30s, it started on the decline. Former members of the profession have varying explanations.

Tommy Freeman, a former world welterweight champion now living in Hot Springs said today it died "because the fighters just aren't as strong as they used to be. They can't take it any more."

Harold Briggs, a veteran boxer and promoter, now a nightclub operator in El Dorado said it is because "they just didn't promote it like they should have."

Another fighter, George Sanders of El Dorado, once called "the Little Rock Butcher Boy," said the trouble was "the boys have all gotten out of it. Nobody's getting them interested in boxing anymore."

There is no organized professional boxing in Arkansas now. The last reported fight-for-pay matches in the state were in the late 1940s.

Neither is there any golden gloves competition. About the only boxing left, even on an amateur level, are the charity matches held each December for boxers from several states at the Baptist Home for Children in Monticello, Ark.

Freeman, who held the world welterweight title from Sept. 5, 1930, until April 14, 1931, said the sport "went along pretty good from about 1938 until 1935 or so, but some way or another, just like anything else, it just dropped. It seems like all interest just stopped."

Sanders said "there just are not any boxers anymore. It used to be, when I was in the game, you could pick up a boxing match anywhere, but nowadays everybody has about gotten out of it."

In the 1930s, Sanders recalled, "all the cities had fights all the time — Little Rock, Hot Springs, Fort Smith, Texarkana, El Dorado

California Faces More Fire Danger

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—California faces possibly its most explosive fire danger season in a generation, with no respite in sight until the fall, a veteran forester says.

The season started officially a month and a half early in Northern California and "things have not gotten any better. They've gotten worse," said Howard E. Moore, deputy state forester for fire control.

Fire crews still are battling to extinguish the first massive fire of the season, a 45,000-acre blaze in the Angeles National Forest near Los Angeles. The fire was contained Tuesday night.

The early start of the fire season means conditions in July and August will be worse than usual, Moore said.

"I suspect the last time we had conditions really similar to this was before my time, in 1945," he said. "The bulk of the state can't expect any rains until late October or early November."

Saint John's-bread is a popular name for the carob tree.

School Suit Is Filed in Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A motion charging that the Little Rock School Board had constructed a number of schools on a "racial neighborhood basis" since the Supreme Court's desegregation decisions of 1954 and 1955 was filed Tuesday in federal District Court.

The motion, filed by John W. Walker of Little Rock, asks that the board be ordered to draw up a desegregation plan for the coming school year on non-racial geographic attendance zones or a consolidation of schools or grades.

Walker said he would be willing to allow the board enough time to produce a plan that would meet the requirements of a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision before asking for a hearing on the motion.

The motion quoted a May 27 court decision as saying freedom of choice plans were not acceptable where "there are reasonable available other ways."

Walker said in the motion that 6,429 of 8,495 Negro pupils enrolled in the Little Rock School District in the 1967-68 school term attended all-Negro schools.

Walker also charged that about two-thirds of the 16,108 white pupils in the system at-

Wedding on July 4 to Be Jazzie

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—When Alice Ann Doughty gets married July 4 providing the "not-so-traditional" music at the wedding will be a Dixieland band.

"We think most church music is not very good," said the father of the bride, Ralph Doughty. He will escort his daughter down the aisle of St. Patrick's Catholic Church, then join the band to play trumpet.

Music for the wedding will include the Dixieland jazz versions of the wedding march, the offertory, Lord's Prayer, communion and recessional.

Alice Ann, 20, is getting married to Robert Kellogg, a 21-year-old sergeant stationed at Warren Air Force Base in Cheyenne, Wyo. She says she doesn't know what he will think about it, but said he had heard the jazz music for a Thanksgiving Mass and "thought it was great."

The Rev. Dale Dirkschneider, an assistant pastor, who will perform the ceremony, says he favors the jazz music.

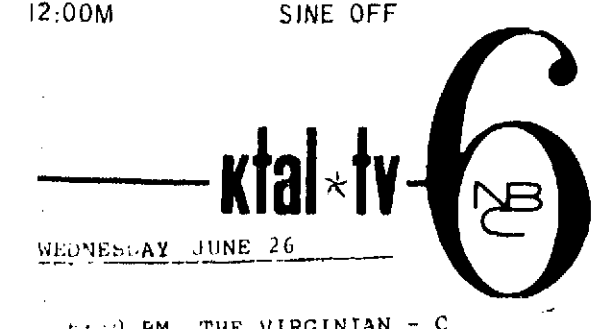

Thomas Jefferson founded the University of Virginia in Charlottesville.

Would Halt Murton Movie in Arkansas

By RUTH ANN VAUGHAN
Associated Press Writer
PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP)—Democratic gubernatorial candidate Bruce Bennett said Tuesday night he would move to halt the showing of a movie based on a book by former Prison Supt. Thomas O. Murton if the movie appears to be slanderous to Arkansas.

Bennett made the statement at a news conference and in a speech marking the opening of his campaign headquarters at Pine Bluff. Approximately 250 persons heard the speech.

"I'm going to try, if possible — call it political if you may — to preserve the good name of Arkansas," Bennett told newsmen.

He said Murton had not revealed all the facts of his previous experience when he applied for a job in the Arkansas prison system, and he did not expect the movie to be factual.

"If it is factual, fine," he said.

Bennett said he would reorganize the Board of Correction to include former sheriffs, prosecuting attorneys and a psychiatrist. He said he would not, however, reinstate the use of the strap.

The name of the movie based on Murton's book is to be "The Strap."

Bennett reiterated the prison's financial quandary and repeated his prediction that "any widow woman in Arkansas" could make the prison break even financially.

Bennett said the first thing he will do, if elected, is to require a budget from every board and department in the state.

He said he would also clinch up the state's financial belt and "see if any of those experts could use employment anywhere else in the United States."

The former attorney general said he does not think Arkansians are interested in any tax increase or bond issue, and that the only tax increase he will support would be on luxuries.

The present state constitution is not outdated, Bennett said, adding that the money for a convention and a special election could be put to better use.

He said earlier in the news conference that he personally would not vote for constitutional convention in the November general election.

He added that if the people voted to call a convention, he would support it.

He told his audience that he was not for a federally-enacted gun control law.

"No gun law will keep down assassination," he said. "Entirely too much attention has been given to help the criminal instead of the people who got hurt."

He advocated getting Arkansas teachers salaries up to national average or above, and said that good schools and new industry are what's needed to get the state on the road to progress.

University status for all Arkansas colleges, especially Arkansas AM&N at Pine Bluff, he said.

Millwood Is Paradise for Fishermen of the Entire 4-States Area

By Max Love, Travel Writer
Arkansas Publicity and Parks Commission

Don't look now, but there's a sleeper in the deck. And we are not talking about a card shark's fifth ace in a sneaky poker game. We are talking about a lake—a new reservoir—down in Southwest Arkansas that's producing more pounds of game fish per acre than just about any other large body of water in the south or southwest. And the "sleeper" is that it's doubtful that you have heard anything at all about this big new chunk of water since the reservoir was officially dedicated several months ago.

Compared to such mammoths as Beaver, Ouachita, Norfolk, Bull Shoals or Greers Ferry lakes — all of which also are in Arkansas — Millwood is not very impressive. But, when it comes to producing fish — and what does a fisherman go fishing for — this big pond near Texarkana and Ashdown rates a blue ribbon of a true champion.

And, apparently it makes no difference what species of fish you prefer, you can catch 'em. For example, there's a fellow that lives in Texarkana who leaves his job almost every afternoon and heads straight to the lake. He fishes for nothing but catfish. And his wife says that if he brings another pound of fish home she's going to chase him all the way to Canada. Seems that their 22-foot deep freeze is full of filets of catfish, all of their neighbors hide when they see the man coming — they've had enough catfish too — and he's still catching 'em every night.

Crapple fishermen of Southwest Arkansas say that Millwood has no equal. One fisherman from Hope, who happened to be visiting the Arkansas Pavilion at HemisFair '68 at San Antonio, made the statement that he fishes Millwood almost every weekend and he has yet to fail to catch the legal limit — 20 — and, he reported, they are all "slabs."

One bass fisherman (whom we suspect might have been stretching things just a "wee might") said he could catch a limit of "king - size" blacks in ten minutes by just waving a purple worm over the center of his boat. "The bass leap out of the water trying to get the plastic 'goodie' and I catch the big ones on a net and let the little ones fall back into the water," he fabricated. Well, that's his story, but the people with the U.S. Corps of Engineers who work at Millwood Dam, report that bass fishing on the lake as "just great."

And for dream fishermen, Millwood IS IT. Fly fish, use your spinning rig, or just use the old standby, a cane pole, line, small hook and a "bucket of worms" and the result is the same — your limit of "tackle busters" in record time.

Since Millwood is "almost brand new" on the Arkansas fishing scene, there are only two public recreation areas at this time to accommodate campers. But don't let this bother you, there's plenty of spots, nicely shaded along the shoreline of the lake where you can pitch your tent or park your camper and "stay for a spell" while you are luring those various denizens of the deep towards the frying pan.

And another nice thing about Millwood Reservoir is its location. It is entirely surrounded by fine hard surfaced U. S. and state highways and as soon as the remaining strips of Interstate 30 are completed between Little Rock and Texarkana, it will be a breeze for fishermen from central Arkansas to scamper down there early in the morning, catch their limit of the fish of their choice, and be back home before the supper bell rings.

So, partner, if you are a fisherman looking for real action, try Millwood just once and the chances are good that you will make

It pays to gamble with game and small slam bids. Winning players want to be in game whenever they have a 40 per cent chance for success and in a small slam when their chance is 50 per cent. Grand slam contracts are another story. Failure costs both game and small slam. Success only brings the difference between the two slam bonuses. Furthermore, when you do go down at a grand slam there is a great loss of partnership confidence. Of course, if you go down because you find all four enemy trumps in the same hand you pay off but know that your loss was due to misfortune rather than bad bidding.

We like to bid grand slams as well as anyone but we seldom feel that we have missed very much when we fail to get to one. A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush and when we bid six and make seven we have actually collected two birds in our hand (game and small slam), and left only one in the bush.

All this peroration leads up to the fact that we think today's South was properly punished for bad bidding when it turned out that his partner had no play for seven hearts. South pointed out that it was most unfortunate that North held two diamonds and had to lose a diamond trick. He was right about that but the bidding started in the wrong direction when South used Blackwood.

It was perfectly possible for North to have a sound opening bid with two club losers in which case even a small slam would be set. South had a perfect bid at his second turn. He should have jumped to five hearts. This would ask North to bid six with second round diamond control. It would also allow North to bid six clubs to invite a grand slam if North wished to do so.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Causes and Treatment Of Kidney Stones Vary

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Since there are several kinds of kidney stone, of which the commonest are urates, oxalates, phosphates and carbonates of calcium or magnesium, it is not surprising that there are different causes and different treatments. As with gallstones, the "seed" around which the salts mentioned precipitate to form a stone may be bacteria or dead cells associated with a kidney infection. Another cause in some persons is a deficiency of vitamin A or B-6.

Recent studies have revealed some hitherto unsuspected causes. Stones may be caused by taking three or more doses of an aspirin, phenacetin and caffeine combination daily for more than a year or by excessive continued use of highly spiced meat sauce, since these substances irritate the kidneys. In some persons, the intestinal absorption of magnesium is impaired and the amount of calcium in the blood increases. This is followed by an abnormally high concentration of calcium in the urine.

Persons with hereditary cystinuria (an abnormally high concentration of cystine in the urine) are often troubled with cystine stones. These can be prevented by taking penicillamine (Cuprimine). The uric acid stones so often seen in persons with gout can be effectively prevented by the use of the new antihypertensive drug, allopurinol. Other stones can often be prevented by juggling the reaction of the urine from acid to alkaline and from alkaline to acid.

Q—Are kidney stones a

Break for Veterans?

Three men apply for a single government job. One is a war veteran, the other two are not. Should the first man get the job just because he is a veteran?

To some degree, veterans have been getting this kind of a break ever since Civil War days. The motive, of course, is to give them an extra reward for their service to the nation.

Still, they get this reward at the expense of non-veterans who might legitimately complain of discrimination.

In the first place, if a civil service law shows flagrant favoritism for veterans, it will probably be held

Figures Most Americans Law Abiding

LONDON (AP) — Americans are not sick, says a British writer, and if another country had been "so shaken by political and racial violence, a revolution would have occurred or at least the government would have fallen."

John Pilger of the London Daily Mirror wrote from New York that the great majority of Americans are among the most law-abiding people in the world but this fact "appears to have been lost in the emotion over Robert Kennedy's death."

"What is wrong with America is not Americans, but the very law and order they are being called upon to uphold. The gun laws, by their weakness, have simply allowed a disease to spread," he said.

Dr. Hiroshi Minami, a Japanese psychologist who lived in the United States for seven years, wrote in the Japanese weekly Asahi magazine: "In America, democracy is not quite widespread, the Civil War still hasn't completely ended. And the politicians, with vigorous greed for power and prestige, engage in politics with a do-or-die attitude that in no way can be comparable to what takes place in Japan."

"In this respect, the assassinations of the two Kennedys do not appear too mysterious to me."

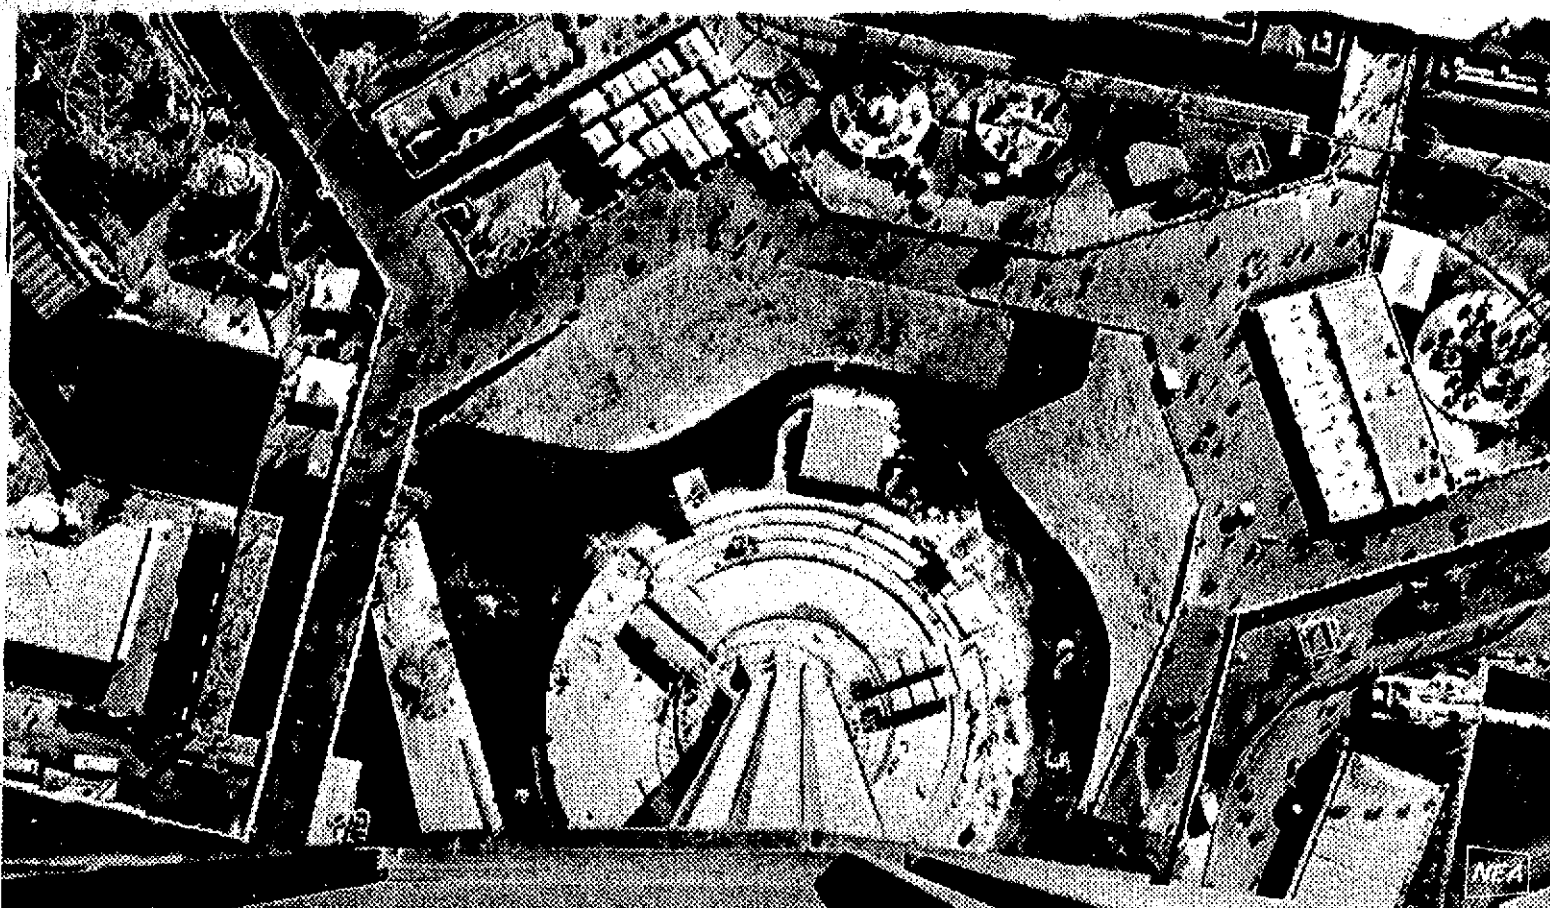

"Individually speaking, however, the Americans are 'open' and 'energetic,' possessing still many of the virtues of the pioneer spirit."

The Times of London predicted that the Democrats will nominate Hubert H. Humphrey for president and the Republicans will choose Richard M. Nixon. "But," it said, "it grows ever plainer that this is not the choice that the American public wants to consider in the autumn."

The Times suggested that American voters want to choose among new men with new ideas. A presidential contest between Eugene J. McCarthy and Nelson A. Rockefeller would "have real meaning, and the winner would face America's problems in the right atmosphere for leadership," the Times said.

The West German magazine Neue Illustrierte Revue carried a report of the American Negro woman.

"As strange as it may appear, the black women in the United States are the real stalwarts of the 'Black Power,'" wrote Gerd

Likes to Do Things the Hard Way

By MAX HARRELSON
Associated Press Writer

TORONTO (AP) — Pierre Elliott Trudeau says he likes to row against the current—another way of saying he likes to do things the hard way.

That is one of the reasons he has become the most exciting and most talked-about politician in recent Canadian history. He has a lot going for him, including the fact that he is intelligent, wealthy, comparatively young and a swinging bachelor who appeals to the younger set and to the women.

These attributes all add up to something that's called Trudeauism.

His swift rise in national politics was definitely against the current.

In 1963 he was not a member of the Liberal party. He was even calling the Liberals sheep and idiots, and was describing their leader Lester B. Pearson as "an unfrocked prince of peace."

Normally this would have ruled out any chance for a bright future as a Liberal. But

Schmitt-Hausser. "They are far more advanced than the man—and that creates social uneasiness in the black society."

"The Negro woman was never regarded as a threat by the white society. She was an object of lust or the good old Negro mammy, the household factotum. This way she could very well earn her and her family's living—in the street or in the house. No wonder that she began to despise the often jobless and no good black man who reacted by having inferiority complexes."

two years later he was elected to Parliament under that party's banner. He became minister of Justice in 1967 with Pearson's blessing and liberal leader and prime minister last April.

In Canada's highest elective office he has continued to take the unorthodox approach. Three days after he took over as head of the government, he dissolved Parliament and called a national election—when he could have remained fairly secure for perhaps another year as prime minister.

As a French-Canadian, he might have soft-pedaled the Quebec question as his Conservative opponent suggested. Instead he went in Quebec Province with his doctrine of "one Canada" and his firm opposition to special constitutional status for Quebec.

He pulled no punches in dealing with separatists who interrupted his speeches with heckling. He called them stupid and said that after the election they would "return to the trash cans from which they came."

Trudeau is a youthful-looking 48. He is the son of a French-Canadian father and a Scottish-Canadian mother, and thus fluent in both English and French. His father made a fortune as an oil distributor in Montreal and Trudeau himself is a millionaire from inheritance.

Callaway Not Surprising to Alabamians

By RAY BELL
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — When Howard H. "Bo" Callaway suggested the Republican party might gain the support of third party presidential candidate George C. Wallace, it caused little surprise to those familiar with the Georgia political figure.

In a way, Callaway might be considered a man of surprises. Until only a few years ago, he was a novice at politics and had been a lifelong Democrat.

Then, abruptly in 1964, he switched his party allegiance to support GOP presidential nominee Barry Goldwater. He became the first Republican to represent Georgia in the U.S. House of Representatives since Reconstruction and later narrowly missed becoming governor of the state.

Most observers concede it was Callaway's political philosophy that caused him to switch parties in 1964. And, they say, this same philosophy may have ignited his recent remarks concerning Wallace.

According to Callaway, who now is Southern campaign manager for GOP presidential hopeful Richard M. Nixon, he told the Mississippi Republican Committee in a speech that "... maybe we can even get George (Wallace) himself on our side, because that's where he ought to be."

"I suggested that all who want a change... you've got to change through the Republican party," he said.

Even as a Democrat, Callaway had been conservative. Later, as a Republican representative, he voted against all federal welfare programs and opposed medicare, minimum wage legislation, grants for urban renewal and other Great Society programs of President Johnson.

"I reject the idea that the world owes me a living from the cradle to the grave," he said at one time. "I believe you do not cure poverty with charity, you cure poverty with hard work."

The son of Cason J. Callaway, founder of the Callaway Mills industrial empire, the handsome 41-year-old Callaway graduated from the U.S. Military Academy at West Point in 1949 with six letters in athletics and a scholastic record placing him in the top 10 per cent of his class.

He served with the 17th Infantry Division in Korea, leading a platoon from Inchon to the Yalu River, and later became an infantry tactics instructor at Ft. Benning, Ga.

When his father became ill, Callaway resigned from the Army and became president of Callaway Gardens, a vast tourist resort in west Georgia. Then, in 1966, he resigned from Congress to run for governor of Georgia and polled 3,039 more votes than his nearest opponent.

A write-in campaign, however, prevented either candidate from getting a majority and the U.S. Supreme Court threw the election into Georgia's predominantly Democratic state legislature. The legislature named Lester Maddox—a Democrat and runner-up to Callaway in the election.

Money Is the Real Key to Fall Styles

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Whether waistlines are wide or waspish, bosoms banded or buxom, hemlines mini or midi, money must always be maxi if you're really to be in style this fall.

Forget those articles you may have read about looking like a many-dollared darling on a dime or two and a few hours time at your sewing machine.

To look like a million this fall will cost a million—or at least $3,000 for a sable beret by Adolfo, and $4,000 for a Renaissance gown by George Halley and another $2,000 for the latest status symbol, a Derdando Sarmi, a brown chiffon with white mink sleeves.

Throughout the American designers' series of fall collection previews Tuesday there was a steady march of fashions opulent enough to warm the cockles of the coldest tax collector.

Bill Blass designs have never been available for a song. But this year not even a brushed plaid blanket converted to a coat could be had for less than several C-notes. Bathrobes may be low-end merchandise but not when made of lame and bordered with mink the Blass way.

As if every woman were a Medici, George Halley created jewel-encrusted Renaissance gowns with skirts so huge the models appeared to be gliding on ice skates. If the $4,000 price tag were too much one could compromise with a page-boy tunic, also gem-encrusted for a mere $1,500.

Astronomical prices are a familiar tune to Sarmi customers such as Mrs. Cornelia Vanderbilt Whitney and Mrs. Nelson Rockefeller for the Italian has always been a status symbol for the rich.

This year's plans for giving them their money's worth ranged from the sublime chiffons and black silks with cleavage-revealing windows cut in the bodices to ridiculously expensive mink-topped gowns and voluminous many-layered skirts.

Board May Not Close Girls School

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Juvenile Training School Board discussed the possibility Tuesday of renegeing on a plan to shut down the Negro girls school at Fargo, but quickly discarded the suggestion.

The board was recently ordered by the federal court to integrate its training school facilities. The board said it would comply with the order by closing the facility at Fargo and transferring the students to the school for white girls at Alexander.

Jess Reeves of Pine Bluff, a member of the board, suggested during a closed session that the board leave dependent and neglected Negro girls at the Fargo school.

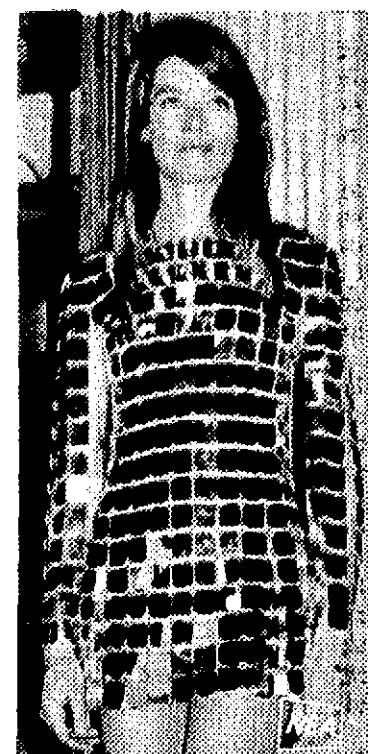

The suggestion met with opposition from Norman J. Chachkin of Little Rock, the attorney for the Negro plaintiffs whose lawsuit led to the integration order.

He told the board that there would be opposition to any kind of "continued racial classification."

Reeves' plan would have provided foster care for about 20 Fargo students who are not delinquent.

Earlier, R. E. Hemphill, superintendent of the school for Negro boys at Wrightsville, and Rogers M. Foster, superintendent at Fargo, questioned the validity of a report prepared by Antony Spock, superintendent of the training school for white boys at Pine Bluff.

The report said that about one third of the students in the two Negro training schools did not belong in training schools. It said they were dependent, neglected or retarded. It also recommended the immediate release of 95 of the students in the Negro facilities. The report said 71 other students in the four institutions should be released as soon as a home-or assistance can be found.

The four facilities house slightly more than 500 students. Hemphill and Foster said many of the students that the study team recommended be released were not ready to be released. They also said there were no homes available for those who were ready to be released.

Hemphill and Foster also charged that the study team had not talked to the students and had not discussed their cases with the superintendents.

TO THE VOTERS OF THE 6th CHANCERY CIRCUIT OF ARKANSAS:

After much thought and consideration and upon the advice of all my physicians I have decided to withdraw from the race for Chancery Judge. This has been a hard decision for me to make, as I would like to finish out my legal career as a judge. This is an unpleasant decision to convey to my many friends in the district, who have pledged their active support and are willing to give a lot of their time to my campaign. To you loyal supporters, I hope you will understand that while I am in good health, my nervous stomach and peptic ulcers will not stand continuous pressure and will limit my campaigning and could injure my health to where I would be handicapped if elected your judge.

The final decision was made at the insistence of my son, and only child, while he and his family were spending Father's Day with me. He has felt from the beginning that I should not engage in a strenuous campaign and at my age should start slowing down and not take on the responsibilities of the judgeship. The close relationship and love that exists with my son makes me feel that I should not ignore his wishes and the many reasons he lists why I should not run.

I will be forever grateful to the many people who have been kind enough to assure me of their active support in my race and I regret not being able to serve them.

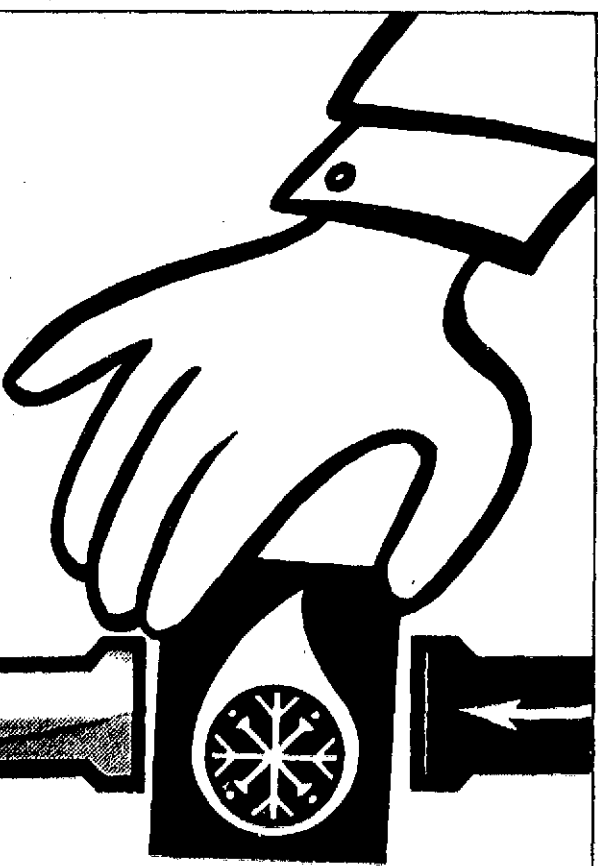

My withdrawal leaves my good friend, Alex Sanderson without an opponent in the primary or general election, and therefore, will be our next Chancery Judge of the 1st Division. I firmly and sincerely believe that the district will have a good judge in Alex Sanderson. He is well trained and qualified in the law and has the necessary qualifications to make this district a good judge, and I am looking forward to serving as a practicing attorney in his court. He has my sincere best wishes and congratulations and I wish to assure him that I will at all times lend whatever assistance that I may be able to give in helping him make an outstanding judge in serving the good people of this district.

Sincerely,

Enemy Peace Group Thinks U.S. to Give

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent
PARIS, (AP) — The United States told North Vietnam today it was "prepared to cease bombardment" of North Vietnamese territory but was unable to do so because Hanoi has intensified its war efforts when the United States was trying to de-escalate.

"We are very serious about these negotiations," Ambassador Cyrus R. Vance told North Vietnamese negotiator Xuan Thuy. "We want them to succeed."

"We think there is a proper basis for peace in Southeast Asia that conforms to the legitimate interests of all the countries of that area, and that we and others should move steadily toward it."

Vance said of the U.S. position: "We are prepared to cease bombardment at the appropriate time and circumstances. Our fundamental premise is that North Vietnam must not improve its military position as a result of the cessation of bombardment by the United States."

They replied, according to his spokesman, with a new demand that all attacks on the North stop immediately without any military reciprocity by the North Vietnamese forces. He said then other peacemaking questions could be discussed here.

The two sides agreed to meet again next Wednesday.

The Americans and North Vietnamese agreed that the talks made no progress. But there was a 42-minute coffee break of which North Vietnamese spokesman Nguyen Thanh Le said: "There was nothing special during it."

The coffee breaks are regarded by American negotiators as a hopeful development for the future when they may provide a basis for private exploration of peace possibilities.

Some American officials had hoped for evidence by this stage of the Paris peace talks that the North Vietnamese were actively considering moves toward de-escalation, to match President Johnson's March 31 limitation on the bombing of the North. They now see evidence instead that Hanoi is holding out for a further U.S. concession.

U.S. and North Vietnamese negotiators returned to the conference table today after a week's recess. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman is in the United States this week and his deputy, Ambassador Cyrus R. Vance, headed the American negotiating team.

Vance and the U.S. ambassador to Laos, William H. Sullivan, discussed the negotiations Tuesday with Laotian Premier Souvanna Phouma, who is in Paris for medical attention and a vacation.

U.S. officials expected North Vietnamese Ambassador Xuan Thuy to confront Vance, as he has Harriman at each of the previous nine meetings, with his government's demand that the United States end all bombing of North Vietnam. He has said repeatedly that no other issues can be discussed until that is done.

$22 Million Worth Heroin Is Seized

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal agents have seized $22.4 million worth of heroin—the largest single seizure of the drug in the nation's history—in an automobile in New York City, Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark said today.

Clark said the 112 kilograms of pure heroin was discovered in a hidden compartment in a foreign automobile which had been shipped to New York City from France.

Bidders Must Have Permits

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The attorney general's office said Tuesday that bidders on state highway contracts must hold current state sales tax permits or be registered under the use tax law.

Attorneys for the state Highway Department had questioned the validity of a 1955 law which requires prospective bidders to either show a permit or be registered. The opinion went to Highway Director Ward Goodman.

Shantytown Is Wiped Out, Negro Leader in Jail for 20 Days

By AUSTIN SCOTT

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The streets of the nation's capital were back to normal today—no curfew, no heavy police patrols, no National Guardsmen and few visible symbols of the Poor People's Campaign.

But even with its leader, the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, beginning a 20-day jail term and Resurrection City reduced to stacks of plywood, the campaign continued to run at a reduced pace.

"We have to keep the movement alive," said the Rev. Andrew Young, Abernathy's chief assistant, as he announced plans for clergymen to march on the Capitol grounds today, despite a law forbidding demonstrations there.

Young told a news conference plans for the ministerial demonstration had been in the works for some time. They were released by Abernathy in a letter "from a jail in Washington D.C."

The tactic was similar to Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s classic "Letter from a Birmingham Jail" in 1963, but Abernathy's was much shorter and quite different in content.

"I am in jail with the poor, and today I ask you to join us," it said. "The time for stating our case in words is past; we have done that and have been rebuffed by the authorities..." Abernathy said he hoped the clergymen would be just "one of the first waves of people who are willing to join the poor in jail..."

You Don't Have to Be a Professor to Be Absent Minded

By JOY STILLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The absent-minded professor who winds the cat and puts out the clock is in full possession of his wits compared to me. I would put the cat to bed, give the clock a saucer of milk and stand outside all night, ticking.

This scatter-brain trait of mine is not new, even though it is becoming more apparent daily. Way back when the kids were little and the family was sitting around the dinner table I very carefully tied a bib around my husband's neck while our youngest, for whom it was intended, gurgled in glee.

I've not only poured the coffee into the sugar bowl instead of the cup, but I once ran the electric coffeepot through its entire cycle with nothing in it but water. It made a hot, but not very peppy, drink.

Not long ago I put some potatoes on to cook and stepped outside to move the hose to a new position in the yard. This done, I spotted a neighbor across the street and went over to say hello. Our chat lasted quite awhile—in fact, until I saw water from the hose pouring out into the street.

When I went back to turn it off I discovered that, while there was too much water on the grass, there wasn't enough

Routine Meet of City Board

In its regular session last night the Hope City Board of Directors took up only fairly routine matters.

The City accepted a bid of $4,073.89 from Hope Auto for a truck and chassis for a fire truck. The bid was the lowest received.

Al Graves submitted a petition from landowners in the Dobbs addition to close a section of a street. A hearing on the matter was set for two weeks hence.

The Board voted to take out liability insurance on all city owned swimming pools.

A complaint from a group of residents in regard to dogs was heard and the Board assured the matter would be investigated.

in the pot with the potatoes. Oh, well, it was an old pan anyhow.

Then there was the time I went to the refrigerator to get a jar of mustard. I couldn't find it anywhere even though I was certain there should be some in plain sight. After a long search, I finally decided to get a new jar out, but before I could open the cabinet I had to put down what was in my hand. It was the mustard, which I had taken out without realizing it when I first opened the refrigerator.

All the new spray products really have me confused. I recently grabbed a can from the bathroom shelf and sprayed my hair with window-cleaner instead of lacquer. It made it nice and shiny but didn't do much for my coiffure.

Just the other day I suddenly heard rain on the roof. This was rather strange as the sun was shining and besides, we don't have a roof, being on the bottom floor of a two-story garden apartment. It turned out my upstairs neighbor had forgotten to put the hose from her washing machine into the sink and the water was raining out onto the floor.

I enjoyed helping her mop up the mess. It was good to know I'm not, the only witless wonder on the block.

Trudeau by Tidal Wave in Canada

TORONTO (AP) — It was a Trudeau tidal wave, and it gave his party a clearcut mandate to rule Canada with a strength no party has enjoyed in six years.

In Tuesday's election Pierre Elliott Trudeau, who entered politics only three years ago, led his Liberals to the biggest victory any party has scored since John Diefenbaker's prime. Diefenbaker in 1958 spearheaded the Conservatives to a landslide triumph that was good for four years' control.

Trudeau became Liberal leader, and thus prime minister, by choice of a party convention two months ago when Lester B. Pearson retired. Tuesday Canadian voters had the chance to ratify or repudiate the choice. Their answer gave the Liberals the House of Commons majority they had never won under Pearson's leadership.

Trudeau on assuming the prime ministry vowed to improve his party's standing. As the leading party, even lacking a majority, the Liberals could call an election at a time they thought advantageous. Trudeau and his aides judged this a good time, and the bet paid off.

How did he do it? There is no question of Trudeau's personal appeal, evidenced in the reaction of happy throngs that greeted him on the campaign trail across the country. But as the

Rockefeller, Reagan Team Kept Alive

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller says he's picking up support that had gone to Sen. Robert F. Kennedy—and at the same time has kept alive the idea of running with California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

"He (Kennedy) had become a symbol to minority groups more than anyone since Roosevelt," Rockefeller said in Albany Tuesday. "I think much of this is now coming my way."

The Republican presidential aspirant said earlier in the day there was "absolutely no basis" to reports he had given up the idea of a Rockefeller-Reagan ticket.

"Although Mr. Reagan himself has said he would not be a candidate," Rockefeller said, "there have been a great many people who have felt there was a possibility of a ticket there."

GOPs May Block Try by Johnson to Name Successor to Warren

By JOHN CHADWICK

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republicans are questioning whether they can—or should try—to block any attempt by President Johnson to name a successor to Earl Warren as chief justice of the Supreme Court.

Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said Tuesday there is a question of policy whether Johnson should try to replace Warren "in the shank of his administration."

But Dirksen also said there is a question of whether a refusal to confirm a nominee before Johnson steps out of the White House would be an intrusion by Congress on executive powers.

While Dirksen was commenting after a luncheon meeting of Senate Republicans Tuesday, Warren in California discussed for the first time reports that he is retiring.

He said he had given President Johnson a letter about his retirement plans but, "as a matter of courtesy... the contents should come from him."

"The President should make any announcement about the letter, whenever it may be," Warren told newsmen at the San Francisco Airport as he arrived in the state for vacation.

Although several senators have said they are opposed to Johnson, as a "lame duck" President, naming a new chief justice, none questioned his constitutional power to nominate one.

The luncheon meeting was called to organize GOP thought on the subject, but Dirksen said only three or four senators had a chance to express themselves before the session was cut off for a Senate vote.

The GOP leader said he would not make a statement of his position until his colleagues have discussed it further.

Sen. Robert F. Griffin, R-Mich., has said he would oppose any nomination because for a "lame duck" president to design-

LBJ Names Fortas as Chief Justice

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson announced today his acceptance of the resignation of Chief Justice Earl Warren and the selection of Justice Abe Fortas to replace Warren.

And Johnson told a news conference he was nominating Homer Thornberry of Austin, Tex., former congressman and now a judge on the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit, to the Supreme Court seat from which Fortas will move up.

Johnson wound up the news conference by picking up a pen and signing the nominations for Fortas and Thornberry before sending them on the way to the Senate for confirmation.

He read Chief Justice Warren's resignation of June 13 saying that he was leaving only for reasons of age. He is 77.

Johnson wrote back today saying he would accept Warren's decision to retire at the time his successor is qualified.

"You have won for yourself," Johnson told Warren, "the esteem of your fellow citizens. You have served your nation with exceptional distinction and deserve the nation's gratitude."

"Under your leadership, the Supreme Court of the United States has once again demonstrated the vitality of this nation's institutions and their capacity to meet with vigor and strength the challenge of changing times. The court has acted to achieve justice, fairness and equality before the law for all people."

Johnson said he was pleased to have Fortas as a successor. He said Fortas was "one of the winners in the district contest held here."

New Enemy Drive on Saigon Seen

By GEORGE ESPER

Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. sources said today two freshly equipped North Vietnamese regiments—possibly 5,800 men—are believed headed toward Saigon to join the enemy force threatening another attack on the South Vietnamese capital.

U.S. intelligence officers said the 32nd and 33rd North Vietnamese regiments were in Phuoc Long Province five days ago, 74 miles north of Saigon and 165 miles southwest of their previous headquarters.

The two regiments have been inactive for a year while refitting. They include veteran troops who fought in the 1965 Ia Drang Valley campaign, one of the bloodiest of the war.

The two regiments are normally headquartered along the Cambodian border just west of Pleiku in the central highlands. Apparently they moved down through Cambodia and crossed the border into Phuoc Long, U.S. B52 bombers have been attacking their suspected positions in efforts to break up their troop concentrations and blunt their advance toward Saigon.

The eight-engine bombers flew eight missions Tuesday and Wednesday against enemy base camps and river landing points in Binh Long, Binh Duong and Tay Ninh provinces, west and south of Phuoc Long. These are considered the enemy's main infiltration corridors from Cambodia to Saigon.

The river points, 15 to 20 miles from the Cambodian border, are where rockets destined for use against Saigon are loaded on sampans after shipment down from North Vietnam through Laos and Cambodia.

Prisoner interrogations and captured documents have indicated the enemy plans for a third offensive on Saigon, expected to be as big as the second offensive May 5, when about 10,000 soldiers were sent against the city.

Allied troops have formed a ring of patrols around Saigon, but ground fighting has been in a lull for about two weeks.

Elsewhere, enemy machine-guns shot down a U.S. Marine jet fighter-bomber three miles from the allied combat base at Khe Sanh in the northwest corner of South Vietnam. The pilot bailed out and was rescued.

An explosive apparently hidden under the dashboard of a U.S. Air Force bus blew up today as the bus was crossing a bridge over the Da Nang River. A U.S. Marine spokesman said 10 American passengers and bridge security guards were wounded and the bridge was slightly damaged.

Over North Vietnam, U.S. pilots flew 128 missions Tuesday against enemy supply lines in the southern panhandle below the 19th parallel.

A U.S. spokesman said pilots reported destroying or damaging 13 trucks, seven bridges, five supply boats and three warehouses.

In a delayed report, U.S. headquarters said four Navy F4 Phantoms from the carrier Enterprise tangled with two Communist MIGs Monday just south of the 19th parallel. A spokesman said the American fighter-bombers fired air-to-air missiles at the MIGs but the enemy planes escaped to the north.

Giraffe Drive Touches Many Hearts

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The city of Little Rock's drive to purchase a pair of giraffes has touched the hearts and billboards of men through Arkansas.

A group of inmates at Cummins Prison Farm raised $4.10 for the giraffe fund Tuesday because they said, "We are in sympathy with that lone male giraffe."

Prison Supt. Victor Urban said he and other officials had added $14 to the contribution. The city recently raised $5,000 for a male giraffe and has collected half of the $6,000 needed to purchase a female companion.

conference Tuesday neither Rockefeller nor Richard M. Nixon had asked him to become a running mate.

Reagan, a GOP favorite son, also indicated he would not be entered as a presidential candidate at the Republican National Convention if it is obvious someone else has the nomination locked up in advance.

"Obviously, if the convention is going to be sewed up," he said, "there's no sense in going down there and going through an empty gesture."

He indicated in such a situation he might also release California's 86-vote delegation before the convention. A key member of the delegation has said it would substantially favor Nixon if Reagan were not a factor.

In the Democratic race, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey has scheduled a campaign swing through Colorado, North Dakota and Iowa—starting in Denver tonight—to seek delegates and outline his views to voters.

Aides have said Humphrey will concentrate on public speeches this summer to dispel any image of a campaign based on "back room politics" for convention delegate votes.

In other political developments: —Nixon, in a position paper, called Berlin a keystone of Western security. "Any indication," he said, "that we are willing to accommodate to renewed Soviet and East German harassment of Berlin would be an invitation for further pressures from the Communists."

—Third party presidential candidate George C. Wallace set out today on a campaign swing aimed at raising campaign funds and gaining enough voter signatures to get on the November ballot in Maryland and Massachusetts. The swing also will take him through his home state of Alabama.

—Eleven Republican senators, most of them considered favoring Nixon, have criticized Rockefeller for attacks by name against Nixon and Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, D-Ore. "We are dismayed," they said in a telegram, "by your breach of the so-called 11th Commandment not to speak ill of a fellow Republican."

An Associated Press poll shows Humphrey has at least 19 of Indiana's 63 delegate votes. Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Massachusetts, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Massachusetts, and other delegates were not reached or declined to state their preference.

Iwo Jima Has Reverted Back to Japanese

By BOB POOS

Associated Press Writer
TOKYO (AP) — Iwo Jima, one of the world's great battlefields, reverted from American to Japanese administration today.

In 26 furious days of fighting, 6,821 Americans and 19,000 Japanese perished on the island in February and March 1945.

The Americans gave back to Japan two groups of central Pacific islands—the Volcanos, which include Iwo, and the Bonins which include Chichi Jima, the only one in the two groups inhabited by civilians.

Three other small islands—Marcus, Rosario and Parace Vella—related geographically to the major groups are also reverting to Japan.

Small American detachments on Marcus, Iwo and Chichi will remain for the time being. Control of the islands was officially returned to Japan at a ceremony in Tokyo attended by Crown Prince Akihito, Prime Minister Eisaku Sato and Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson as senior U.S. representative.

Sato and Akihito hailed return of the islands as an example of postwar cooperation between Japan and the United States. Restoration ceremonies also were held on Iwo and Chichi.

While celebrating the return of the Volcanos and Bonins, the Japanese press urged a continuing campaign to regain other Japanese territories lost in the war. The newspapers mentioned Okinawa, the biggest U.S. base in the western Pacific, and the Soviet-controlled islands north of Japan.

Iwo Jima was the only island of the groups which saw any fighting in the war. The rest were taken by U.S. forces after the Japanese surrender.

The U.S. Marines suffered almost one-third of their casualties in world war II on Iwo Jima. The total of 28,686 Americans killed, wounded and missing stunned the nation, and Fleet Adm. Chester Nimitz commented: "Among the Americans who served on Iwo Jima uncommon valor was a common virtue."

A photograph taken by Associated Press photographer Joe Rosenthal of "The Flag Raising on Iwo Jima" is said to be the most reproduced photo in the world.

Arkansans Against Gun Law

By TOMMY YATES

Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The prospect of a gun control law has sparked an unusual amount of interest in Arkansas from the standpoint of mail that Arkansas' Washington legislators are receiving.

A push for passage of gun control legislation was ignited when Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York was assassinated in Los Angeles.

Since then, mail from Arkansas to Washington has been pouring in at a near-record rate.

A spokesman for Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said the senator has been receiving about 2,000 letters per day for the last two weeks, including about 200 per day from Arkansans.

"This is especially heavy mail from Arkansas," the spokesman said. "We're getting a tremendous response from all over the country."

He said that most of the Arkansas mail is against gun laws while most of the mail from other states is in favor of gun legislation.

The spokesman said McClellan has not made a decision on any proposed crime law. "It will depend on the particular measure and he (McClellan) has not made up his mind prematurely," the spokesman said.

He said the senator "watches the mail with great interest," coming into the office several times a day to check it.

In the past two weeks, the Arkansas Democrat, a Little Rock newspaper, and Jim Johnson of Conway, a Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate, ran form letters in the paper urging the public to sign and send them to their congressmen and senators. The Democrat letter was in favor of gun legislation, while Johnson's letter opposed it.

McClellan's office said it had received "a great number" of the letters printed by the Democrat. A spokesman for the office said he received 50 to 400 of the Johnson letters in the first mail delivery Tuesday and that more were expected.

The spokesman said, however, that the mail had been running two to four hours late because of the large amount.

A spokesman for Rep. David Pryor, D-Ark., who has said he is considering introducing a gun control measure, said Pryor had "received several pieces of mail from the Democrat." He said the congressman hasn't heard anything on Johnson's letter.

The spokesman said, however, that the mail throughout Pryor's district and the state "is running 80 per cent against any form of gun control."

Pryor said the measure he and other congressmen are considering is "aimed specifically at the criminal."

"We're checking out the constitutionality now and if it checks, it would probably be in the form of an amendment to regulation of interstate commerce," Pryor said.

The measure Pryor has in mind would make it a federal penalty to have a firearm when a crime is committed. This is similar to the bill that the Arkansas Association of Police Chiefs is in process of drafting for introduction on the state level.

In response to the replies the Democrat received to its form letter, the newspaper said in an editorial that more than 725 persons had signed the letter in support of gun control laws.

The Democrat emphasized its point by quoting FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, who said: "You have to get a license for your dog. You have to get a license to drive your car. I see no great problem to the individual in requiring all guns to be registered."

Johnson said response to his letter "had some glowing reports."

"There's no question we've

Crank Again Lashes GOP Administration

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Rep. Marion Crank of Foreman, one of six Democrats seeking the gubernatorial nomination, charged Tuesday night that inefficiency in the administration of Republican Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller was responsible for the state's fiscal difficulties.

Crank told a statewide television audience that he would work from a "realistic budget" and not one based on "inflated expenses."

"I believe in living within our income," he said. "I won't spend your money first and ask your opinion later."

Crank also said he could not conceive of the people of Arkansas supporting a bond issue, and added that he would not propose any such venture.

"I feel strongly that when you ask for new taxes, you ask for them to increase services, not to cover up past mistakes," he said.

He also said he would look into the hiring of 1,700 new state employees.

Crank stated that education would receive top priority from his administration. He said increased teachers' salaries and operating revenues for non-teaching personnel are needed immediately.

"Although our public school teachers have been promised a $500 increase in salary for the next year, many of them are fearful and apprehensive that it will not be forthcoming," he said.

"Everything is based on good education — industrial growth, per capita income, future state revenues for highways and welfare... you name it," he said.

Crank said expansion of the state's industrial and agricultural economies is the most permanent solution to the state's financial problems.

"We must revitalize the economy," he said.

He had a lot of correspondence to the ad," Johnson said. However, he said he didn't know the exactly how many persons did roadwork at this point, he said, clip and mail the letter because would make it impossible for him to continue to make his home there.

economic development program of this state," he said.

Crank expressed concern about the operation of the prison system, and said there was a need for humane treatment of prisoners. He also said prison security and proper feeding and housing of inmates were basic needs that must be met before the addition of other programs.

Would Save Tree That Saved Him

SAVILTON, N.Y. (AP) — Ramon Blanco, 75, is fighting to save a tree he says once saved his life.

Blanco refused Monday to let a State Traffic Department crew cut down an old maple tree that stands between Route 32 and his 200-year-old home.

Blanco told the crew, "That tree saved my life once when a car hit it while I was in my yard. Without it there would be nothing but my wire fence to ward off any high speed traffic that might not be able to make the curve."

With that comment, Blanco and his wife, Clara, sat down on a small bench beneath the tree.

"I'm not going to budge even if the tree falls down on top of us," said the silver-haired man firmly.

The highway crew, after checking with a supervisor in Poughkeepsie, left the Blanco property and went to work farther down the highway, where they cut down another tree.

In Poughkeepsie, Douglas Vogel, the assistant maintenance engineer for the State Traffic Department, said there were no plans for widening the two-lane road. He said current plans call for resurfacing the road and a two-foot shoulder.

But Blanco says he has seen the road grow a little wider with each resurfacing to the point where it is now less than 14 feet from the corner of his home. He said he intends to hire a lawyer to protect his property.

The elderly man has lived in the two-story colonial house for nearly 40 years. Removal of the tree and further widening of the roadway at this point, he said, would make it impossible for him to continue to make his home there.

Defense of Dollar Not Successful

By STERLING F. GREEN

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's drive to mobilize the nation in defense of the dollar has had only spotty success and apparently will fall far short of its goal.

The target set by Johnson on New Year's Day was to cut $3 billion from the nation's 1967 balance of payments deficit, which rose to an ominous figure of $3.57 billion.

In the nearly six months since, the President's main success was getting Congress to approve a 10 per cent income tax surcharge, which along with an accompanying $6 billion in spending cuts was expected to help restore confidence overseas in the stability of the dollar.

Because the balance of payments deficit—what the United States spent overseas over what it took in—had risen so high there had been concern in the world's banking centers about inflation and the drain on American gold holdings.

Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler told the Senate Finance Committee Tuesday there had been "a quick and quite substantial recovery" in the first quarter of this year when the payment's deficit fell to $606 million.

If the $606 million figures is projected for the rest of the year the deficit would fall only to $2.42 billion.

To reach the relatively negligible deficit figure of $500 million to $600 million, Johnson had sought a combination of legislation and controls, both mandatory and voluntary. These involved:

—A mandatory $1 billion curtailment in direct industry investment overseas.

—A $500 million voluntary reduction on bank loans abroad.

—A $500 million voluntary cut-back in travel outside the country.

—A drop of $500 million in government spending.

—A $500 million savings by enlarging the U.S. surplus in merchandise trade.

Trade—The goal will not be even closely approached. Johnson hoped to increase last year's $4.1 billion surplus in commodity trade to $4.6 billion, by increasing exports and other means. The trade surplus may shrink instead.

Investment—The mandatory curbs on business investment are working. Companies invested a total of $468 million in the first quarter, which is sustained, would cut the outflow of capital in direct investment more than $1 billion from last year's $3.02 billion.

But the goal cannot be achieved, officials say, because of a decision to exempt investment in Canada.
